'angle Over Authority in McMahan Boro Growing Quite Complicated.

McMahan Boro is experiencing quite a t of difficulty just now in straightening it the tangle over authority between eir burgess and justice of the peace, re- rding the recent raid on the Twelfth eet house, which was made Saturday Constable Leopold Waxman, on a war- nt issued by Justice of the Peace A. According to the latter, the warrant s issued by him and served by Wax- n, who called to his assistance Burgess gust Gneiser and Wm. Nelson, a citi- . After the arrests had been made, eiser, it is alleged, was in favor of ac- ting the forfeits then and there, but was finally convinced of this being il- al by Officer Marietta, who with a e of local officers had just arrived to e a warrant issued by Burgess Shut- y.

t was finally decided to take the pris- rs to McMahan Boro which was done. iser then claimed authority to collect forfeits, which was done and the oners were released. Tuesday being or the time of the hearing, Gneiser found that he had no authority in rd to the matter and offered to turn forfeits over to Squire Vaness, but Vaness refused to accept, stating that man will have to turn either the oners or the warrant unserved over m personally.

This will a suit for damages in case another t is made on the same charge. ser has already paid Waxman for his ces out of the forfeit money, which ll another complication.

nsiderable trouble will no doubt be nenced before the matter is finally d, as Vaness absolutely refuses to anything to do with the matter un- e prisoners or the warrant are turned to him The matter is drawing a deal of attention and many con- ces are being made as to the possible me.

MISS BOORE WINS CONTEST

Given In Kelly's Hall Last Night Under Auspices of Lutheran Church.

Despite the blinding snow storm last night every seat was occupied and some were left to stand at the oratorical contest in Kelly's hall. The program as announced in these columns last evening, was carried out in the main. All the contestants did credit to themselves, even though bad colds rendered two of the speakers very hoarse.

Miss Nellie Boore was first on the program and recited "The Octaroon." Miss Pearl Brewer followed reciting "The Scar on the Face." A patriotic selection, "Nations and Humanity" was presented by Mr. Adam Horn." "The Organ Builder" was given by Miss Mamie Morris and "Kentucky Belle" by Miss Anna Miller. Mr. Carl Warner's selection was entitled "Daniel Webster and the Wood Chuck," followed by Miss Sara Shutterly who recited "Why He Didn't Sell the Farm."

The contest was decided by popular vote. The result was in favor of Miss Nellie Boore, with honorable mention of Miss Anna Miller, who lost by one vote. The prize was a volume of "The Beautiful Life of Frances E Williard." Rev M. M. Albeck made the presentation address. A souvenir medal was presented to each member of the class.

While the tellers were counting the ballot, Miss Pearl Brewer gave "The Inventor's Wife" and Miss Boore recited two humorous selections to the delight of the audience.

The musical selections were excellent and of commendable variety. Just what sum was realized for the property fund of St. Paul's Lutheran church was not announced, but judging from the size of the audience, it must have been gratifying.

Likes to Hug Women.

Monongahela women are again forced to endure the fond embraces of Jack the hugger who has made his appearance there quite frequently in the past few days.

Jack seems to take particular fancy to the women of the Third Ward making that part of town the principal field of operations. Mrs Charles Castelman was one of his late victims whom he succeeded in capturing after a long chase, her screams however frightened the ardent Jack away. The man has the appearance of being a young foreigner and the police are on the lookout for him

"BLACK HAND" DIDN'T PAN OUT

It Was Only a Bluff and Webster Coon is Now in the County Jail.

For trying to work the "black hand" game, David Bazier, a Webster coon, is now in the county jail, having been arrested on the streets of Greensburg, near the Fisher house yesterday morning by Constable George Anderson. It seems that at a late hour last Friday night Boyd Clapsaddle, night watchman for the gas company at Webster, left his station and went to a restaurant to get something to eat. Upon his return to the office of his employers he found the place broken open and besides other things, his overcoat was missing.

Making an investigation he found pinned to the door a "black hand" notice to the effect that if he would try to discover the perpetrators of the deed his finish was in sight. Nothing daunted he proceeded to investigate. His suspicions were aroused when Bazier came around the next morning and was very much interested in the "black hand" notice. He laid low for several days and yesterday went to Greensburg as a witness on a case in court. He was followed there with a warrant which was placed in the hands of Constable Anderson and he nailed his man on the streets yesterday morning

The negro was taken to the county bastile where he admitted that he was the guilty man. He will be held for court.

Arm Dislocated.

Lilian C., daughter of Mr. and Mrs W. H. Roger, slipped and fell on the pavement in front of her home last evening dislocating her arm. A physician was immediately summoned who set the injured member, and aside from the slight inconvenience no serious results will be experienced McShaffrey, the genial manager of the Star Theatre, will do the high bicycle act and make a noise like a "street to the river" at the Elks' Minstrel Friday and Saturday nights.

Move To South Dakota.

The successful crops of the past years and the exceptional opportunities still offered the farmer, rancher or merchant in Lyman county should induce you to investigate the openings there for yourself. Homeseekers' excursions at about half rates via the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway on first and third Tuesdays in March and April. South Dakoty book and Lyman county leaflet for two cents postage.

LORD Roberts has discovered a substitute for football. In his efforts to create a public sentiment in Great Britain in behalf of national defense he is trying to induce the citizens, and especially the young men, to substitute rifle clubs for games of cricket and football His hope is to promote the growth of the military spirit by developing a force of 1,000,000 men having a considerable military training to re-enforce the first line of national defense in case of an invasion. If our universities are to abolish football, maybe the gladiatorial instinct that some professors see in the young, may be successfully evolved into useful channels by the rifle club.

Miss Grannis' Decision

By A. M. DAVIES OGDEN

Copyright, 1905, by P. C. Eastment

It is so fatally easy for a misunderstanding to arise.

Johnson, galloping swiftly through the long lane of overarching June green, was musing somewhat bitterly upon this fact. It was over a month now since he had seen Helen Grannis a month which had done a great deal toward quickening a spark hitherto not entirely recognized into a vivid flame. He had tried to see her, but unsuccessfully, and now his thoughts were brooding, as so often before, over that last unfortunate meeting. Was he to blame or she? Yet how could the fault be his?

Once again he went back mentally to the beginning—that day when he had telegraphed to ask if she would ride. They had often spoken of so doing, and this had been his first opportunity. The answer had been that she would be at the club at 4 o'clock. Johnson, promptness itself, cantered over from the stable at 4 precisely. There he waited. He waited until half after 4; he waited until a quarter of 5. There was no sign of Miss Grannis. At last reluctantly he rode toward the park, wondering what could have happened. The first person he met, walking her horse slowly down the main drive in the direction of the gate, was the girl herself, and with her, talking eagerly, was Ransome Sinclair, the man of all others whom Johnson most detested.

For a moment Johnson had stared, really incredulous, unable to trust his eyes.

Then, with a formal lifting of his hat, he was past, the dark red mounting to his cheek and rage in his soul. Had she forgotten the engagement, or had she deliberately thrown him over for Sinclair—Sinclair with his millions, who could give her everything?

In the sudden blackness revealed by the flash of jealousy Johnson realized for the first time how much this slender, dainty girl, with her pretty little air of stateliness, meant to him.

He had hardly gone a mile before the impulse which had made him bow and pass on looked the height of ridiculousness. Of course there was some mistake. Why had he not stopped and asked? But, although he turned at once, it was too late; the two had vanished.

He had telephoned that night. Miss Grannis was out for dinner. He had called the next afternoon. Miss Grannis was not at home. He could not write, for there was nothing to say. One could not ask a lady why she had chosen to ride with another. The week after, when he tried calling once more, the house was closed. He found that the family had departed for their country place.

Johnson was in despair, but it was not entirely a bad thing for him; it taught him a lot.

As he turned in now at the Newlands place and dropped off his horse some one moving down by the tennis court suddenly brought his heart into his mouth. Could it be she? He knew that Miss Grannis and Ida Newlands were great friends. Was it possible she might be stopping here for a week end? With tingling pulses he went forward. It was—it was! And he might never have known! Somehow he managed to answer properly the greetings of Ida and the men grouped about, then he turned to Miss Grannis.

He was unreasonable enough to be disappointed when the girl gave him merely a conventional smile. He felt that he was the one with the right to be angry. Ida Newlands looked sharply at them both. She knew Helen Grannis well enough to divine that something had occurred.

Now, as she saw Johnson, after a moment, turn aside, her nimble wit leaped to a sudden guess at the truth. And as she caught Johnson's flush as Sinclair came across the lawn her conviction deepened. But what could be done? In this last month Sinclair had been pushing his advantage hard. She knew that Helen was wavering. Ida did not fancy Sinclair; it was her brother who had asked him today. And she did like Johnson. With a swift inspiration she jumped to her feet.

"Let's have some tennis!" she exclaimed. "Helen, I will challenge you and Mr. Johnson to try to beat Mr. Sinclair and myself. Here's your racket," pretending not to see the girl's reluctance. It was the only way she could think of to bring them together.

Johnson could put up a strong game. He was tall, with long legs and arms that seemed to cover every corner of the court. And Helen had a clean, telling stroke. Sinclair, however, was no mean adversary. They would have to play up. But Johnson was not thinking of tennis. This was his chance. He must make the most of it before she joined that chattering group. As he brought the balls to Miss Grannis for her service he looked down at her for a moment.

"Why did you not come to the club that day?" he asked abruptly. "I waited and waited"—

"Waited!" echoed the girl. "Why"—

"Ready!" interrupted Sinclair, and Helen flashed a ball over the net. Johnson, his heart beginning to beat fast, tightened the grip on his racket. There had been surprise, unmistakable surprise, in Helen's eyes.

"Did you not expect me to meet you at the club?" he demanded as they changed courts.

"You lost that point," was the impatient response. "No, of course not. I always mount at the park entrance."

"But the maid said"—persisted Johnson.

"Then the maid was mistaken. Ah, be careful," as he nearly missed a returned ball.

A strange desire not to be beaten had suddenly sprung to life in her breast. They must win this set, she and Johnson. They must not be beaten by Sinclair. She looked across the net at his red, rather heavy face. Could she marry him? Her family had hoped for it. He was a splendid match, of course—and yet—what did Harry Johnson mean by asking why she had not come to the club? She had told the maid to say that she would be at the park entrance and then to telephone the club for her horse.

"Waited there an hour," said Johnson. "And then to meet you coming out of the park—with another man! What could I think?"

"Ah!" said the girl, with a quick indrawn breath. Couldn't he have known that she was only walking her horse up and down while she waited? The meeting with Sinclair had been pure chance. She, too, had waited, growing more and more annoyed with the awkward position in which she found herself; annoyed also by Sinclair's veiled remarks upon Johnson's tardiness, his polite wonder, and then to have Johnson appear, raise his hat and pass on! The girl bit her lip again at the memory.

Then suddenly as she caught the look in his eager, earnest eyes her own softened. After all, he had a bad time too. And all through that stupid Marie's having the messages confused. With an impulsive gesture she turned.

"Do play!" she exclaimed. "We must get this set."

Sinclair, rather sulky at being forced to play on a hot afternoon, had hitherto not chosen to exert himself, letting the games go to his adversaries, but now he was beginning to be interested. If they were to win, Johnson must concentrate. And Johnson, all at once infected by something in the girl's manner, straightened himself. The other side should not win a single game. Love three, love four! Sinclair, subtly aware of an unwonted tension in the air, strove his utmost, unavailingly. Johnson, his mouth shut hard, played as though muscled with steel. Love five! Helen was breathless, her lips parted. Love six! Set!

With a great sigh, Johnson faced her. "We've won!" he whispered exultingly, just loud enough for her to hear. Helen, her eyes unfathomable, glanced for a moment across at Sinclair—Sinclair with his millions. Then, the sweetest, tenderest smile curving her mobile mouth, she lifted her face to Johnson.

"I—," she said softly, "a love match."

Mines of Mammoth Bones.

At some time in the distant past a remarkable state of affairs existed in what are now the bleak arctic regions of Siberia. At the time of which we speak the climate must have been comparatively mild, for thousands and hundreds of thousands of huge animals, mostly of the elephant type, roamed up and down the valleys of what are now frozen polar rivers. In the midst of their innocent happiness a sudden and awful change came. Some philosophers say that the earth "fell out of balance" and tilted thousands of miles to the north. Whatever the cause, fierce winter almost instantly swept over the land of the mastodon and the mammoth and overwhelmed the great beasts in huge snowdrifts, from which they could not extricate themselves. In the course of time these huge banks of snow were transformed into great mountains of ice, and today specimens of the great hairy mammoth may be found that are as fresh as when they were frozen in, thousands of years ago. In some places along the Lena river the bluffs are perfect mines of mammoth bones.

The Change That Was Wrought.

The little man was explaining to his audience the benefits of physical culture. "Three years ago," he said, "I was a miserable wreck. Now, what do you suppose brought about this great change in me?" "What change?" said a voice from the audience. There was a succession of loud smiles, and some persons thought to see him collapse. But the little man was not to be put out. "Will the gentleman who asked 'What change?' kindly step up here?" he asked suavely. "I shall then be better able to explain. That's right!" Then, grabbing the witty gentleman by the neck, "When I first took up physical culture I could not even lift a little man. Now (suiting action to word) I can throw one about like a bundle of rags." And finally he flung the interrupter half a dozen yards along the floor. "I trust, gentlemen, that you will see the force of my argument, and that I have not hurt this gentleman's feelings by my explanation." There were no more interruptions.

Saints and Disease.

The good St. Anthony owes scarcely more of his fame, probably, to his temptations than to the association of his name in popular speech with a disease. Erysipelas, known as the "sacred fire" before the eleventh century, owes its later name of "St. Anthony's fire" to the tradition that those who invoked the saint during a terrible epidemic of that time were cured. A complete list of complaints thus linked with the names of saints would be very curious. Neuralgia in the jaw is St. Apollonia's disease, sore throat or quinsy St. Blase's, colic St. Erasmus', cancer St. Giles' and hydrophobia St. Hubert's. Epilepsy is either St. Aventin's disease or St. Mathurin's or St. John's evil. Insanity is St. Dymphna's disease and drunkenness St. Martin's evil.—London Chronicle.

One would think the Laxative idea in a cough syrup should have been advanced long before it was. It seems the only rational remedy for Coughs and Colds would be to move the bowels and clean the mucous membranes of the throat and lungs at the same time. Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar does this. It is the Original Laxative Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough, etc. Tastes good and is harmless.—Sold by R. W. Beck.

The tar that is contained in Bee's Laxative Honey and Tar is harmless. It is not coal tar, but is obtained from the pine trees of our own native forests. Bee's Laxative Honey and Tar is the best remedy for colds because it acts on the bowels—thus expelling all colds from the system. Bee's is the original Laxative Honey and Tar, and is best for coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough, lung and bronchial effections. Sold by C. A. Light.

Don't frown—look pleasant. If you are suffering from indigestion or sour stomach, take Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. Hon. Jake Moore, of Atlanta, Ga., says: "I suffered more than 20 years with indigestion. A friend recommended Kodol. It relieved me in one day and I now enjoy better health than for many years." Kodol digests what you eat, relieves sour stomach, gas on stomach, belching, etc.—Sold by R. W. Beck.

A liquid cold cure for children that is pleasant, harmless and effective is Bee's Laxative Honey and Tar. Superior to all other cough syrups or cold remedies because it acts on the bowels. If you are troubled with Piles and can't find a cure, try Witch Hazel Salve, but be sure you get that made by E. C. De Witt & Co., Chicago. It is the Original. If you have used Witch Hazel Salve without being relieved it is probable that you got hold of one of the many worthless counterfeits that are sold on the reputation of the genuine De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve.—Sold by R. W. Beck.

The gums and resins obtained from pine trees have long been recognized as highly beneficial in the treatment of backache, kidney and bladder troubles. Pine-ules is the name of a new medicine, the principle ingredients of which come from the pine forests of our own native land. Sold by C. A. Light.

Mothers everywhere praise One Minute Cough Cure for the sufferings it has relieved and the lives of their little ones it has saved. A certain cure for coughs, croup and whooping cough. know the value of pure ale in dietetics.

If a patient lacks vitality or nerve-force, pure ale at meal time is the usual prescription.

The reason is because malt and hops are foods for both nerves and blood.

But the ale must be pure to be of benefit. We guarantee Monessen Brewery Ale to be of absolute purity. All its virtues come straight from the malted field-barley and best Bohemian hops.

WEBSTER NOTES.

John Denning made a business trip to Pittsburg Monday.

A. A. Perkins was transacting business in Monessen yesterday.

Wm. Huffman was a recent visitor at Finleyville calling on a number of old friends.

Miss Roxie Pierce is visiting her uncle in Monongahela City. She will remain about a week.

Mrs. S. A. Stricklin was visiting her sister and calling on friends in Fayette City Sunday.

Mr. Geo Raufman, who left some time ago to join his brother now in California, returned home Monday.

No matter what others say the snow is always welcomed by the youngsters, snowballs and sleds are again the main attraction.

It has been announced that there will be a change of pulpits in the M. E. Church this coming Sunday. Rev. O. B. Emerson, of Clariton, will preach in place Rev. Judson Jeffries who will fill Rev. Emerson's pulpit.

Preparations are are being made by some of the older boys and girls of town for an old fashioned sleighing party. Quite a number have already expressed a willingness to go. If the present snow remains this sport will be largely indulged in owing to there having been no previous snow sufficiently heavy.

Reports Excellent Progress.

Capt. Wm. Dias who is raising the sunken steamer, Rose Hite at Lock No. 5 reports excellent progress. According to his account the boat is now resting on sixteen chains with part of the main deck above water and the freight being gradually removed from the deck room. He states that the hull is covered with about a foot of mud which will require some time to remove. Taking into consideration the time the boat has been under water, he considers it in first class shape.

Miss Pearl Rowe of Donner avenue, returned home last night from the Allegheny hospital, where she was taken Dec. 23, to be operated on for appendicitis. She was operated on Jan. 13, was in cot number 3, was in the hospital 13 weeks and came home on the 13. Miss Rowe has the wishes of her many friends for a speedy recovery.

A number of Monessenites will go to McKeesport tomorrow night to witness the 6 round bout between Jock Sinco of that city and Jack Bruce of Pittsburg. A good contest is promised.

The common sense way to cure indigestion is to strengthen the stomach with Mi-o na. 50c a box. Sold under guarantee by Miller's Pharmacy.

Electricity.

The electrical properties of amber were known to the Greeks before the Christian era. Electricity takes its name from the Greek word for amber. Gilbert in 1600 was the first to employ the terms "electric force" and "electric attractions." In 1748 Franklin's electrical researches had progressed so far that he killed a turkey by the electric spark and roasted it by an electric jack before a fire kindled by the electric bottle, and in 1752 by means of the kite experiment he demonstrated the identity of electricity and lightning. The first magneto-electric machine was made at Paris by Pixii in 1832; the first telegraph line in the United States was set up between Washington and Baltimore in 1844; the first submarine cable was laid between England and France in 1850. As early as 1802 Sir Humphry Davy produced an electric light with carbon points on almost the same principle as that now employed. The first electric railway on the continent of Europe was built by Siemens at Berlin in 1881, the first in England was constructed in 1882, and in America the first electric line was built in 1885.

Royal Roads.

People will discover at last that royal roads to anything can no more be laid in iron than they can in dust; that there are, in fact, no royal roads to anywhere worth going to; that if there were it would that instant cease to be worth going to—I mean so far as the things to be obtained are in any way estimable in terms of price, for there are two classes of precious things in the world—those that God gives us for nothing—sun, air and life, both mortal life and immortal, and the secondarily precious things which he gives us for a price. These secondarily precious things, worldly wine and milk, can only be bought for definite money. They never can be cheapened. No cheating nor bargaining will ever get a single thing out of nature's establishment at half price. Do we want to be strong? We must work. To be hungry? We must starve. To be happy? We must be kind. To be wise? We must look and think.—Ruskin.

The Tip of the Alligator's Tail.

A great delicacy in Florida, according to the Cleveland Leader, is the tip of an alligator's tail. It tastes like frogs' legs, though a bit more gamy. Alligator tails are best just after the ricebird season. The big alligators float in the water with only their eyes showing. When they see a flock of these fat, juicy little birds they dive to the bottom. Their long, wide snout scoops up some of the loam, and they float to the surface again with just the rich soil showing. The birds think it is an island. They alight upon it. When the whole family is there the big reptile turns suddenly. Just as the birds scramble off he opens his mouth once. They are gone. The birds are neat little feeders, and the alligator is an epicure at this time of the year. The ricebird diet makes the tip of his tail, of which he is most vain, tender and sweet.

A Famous Dwarf.

Geoffrey Hudson, the famous dwarf of Charles I., was introduced at court during the festivities attending the coronation. By an odd conceit he was concealed in a cold pie, the crust of which being removed disclosed the dwarf fully dressed and making his bow to the king and queen. At the age of twenty he was eighteen inches high, but before attaining the age of thirty he grew several inches additional. Geoffrey, like most dwarfs, was of limited intelligence, but of intense vanity and large self conceit. It is asserted by many scientific authorities that this is a characteristic of dwarfs.

The Theater of Dionysus.

What was probably one of the earliest theaters built was the theater of Dionysus, which was begun five centuries before Christ. The seating capacity of this remarkable building is said to have been 30,000. The theater of Dionysus was erected when Greek art and literature were in their prime. Here were presented to appreciative spectators the wonderful works of Aeschylus, Sophocles and Euripides.

The Burglar's Grasp.

"Did it ever strike you that a burglar of all men is most sensitive to the fitness of things?"

"Can't say it ever did. How do you make it out?"

"He always throws light on his shady transactions with a dark lantern."—Baltimore American.

Perfume of Flowers.

It is claimed that the perfume of flowers disappears as soon as the starch in the petals is exhausted, and it may, it is said, be restored by placing the flowers in a solution of sugar, when the formation of starch and the emission of fragrance will be at once resumed.

Encouraging Him.

Mr. Faintart—Miss Brightly, I—aw—that is—Mabel, I—er—desire to—aw—really— Miss Brightly—Keep right on, Mr. Faintart; I'll consider your proposal and have my answer ready by the time you have got it out of your system.—Philadelphia Press.

On Other Nights.

Mr. Goodthing—How does your sister like the engagement ring I gave her, Bobby? Her Young Brother—Well, it's a little too small. She has an awful hard time getting it off when the other fellows call.—Puck.
